The Legend of Chintimini

The time of the Indian is gone. But the legend of the Indian maiden who saved her people will live as long as the mountain that bears her name.

Chintimini guided her people through an attack by neighboring nations. From a mountain top she signaled with smoke by day and at night with fire.

One dark night the enemy had divided into two groups to hunt for Chintimini's people. They met and each band mistook the other for Chintimini's tribe. A bloody battle followed wherein many braves were killed. Chintimini had guided her people to a dense forest; they were all safe.

Soon peace was restored and wild rejoicing began, but Chintimini was nowhere to be found. Many warriors sought for her in vain. Some believed she perished from the long vigil on the mountain; others said she was a goddess. Ever after the Indians called the mountain Chintimini in memory of the brave maiden who saved them from destruction.

The white man has come, and named the mountain Mary's Peak. But to the Indians, Chintimini Mountain stands as a monument to the loyalty and sacrifice of Chintimini.

To the youth of America

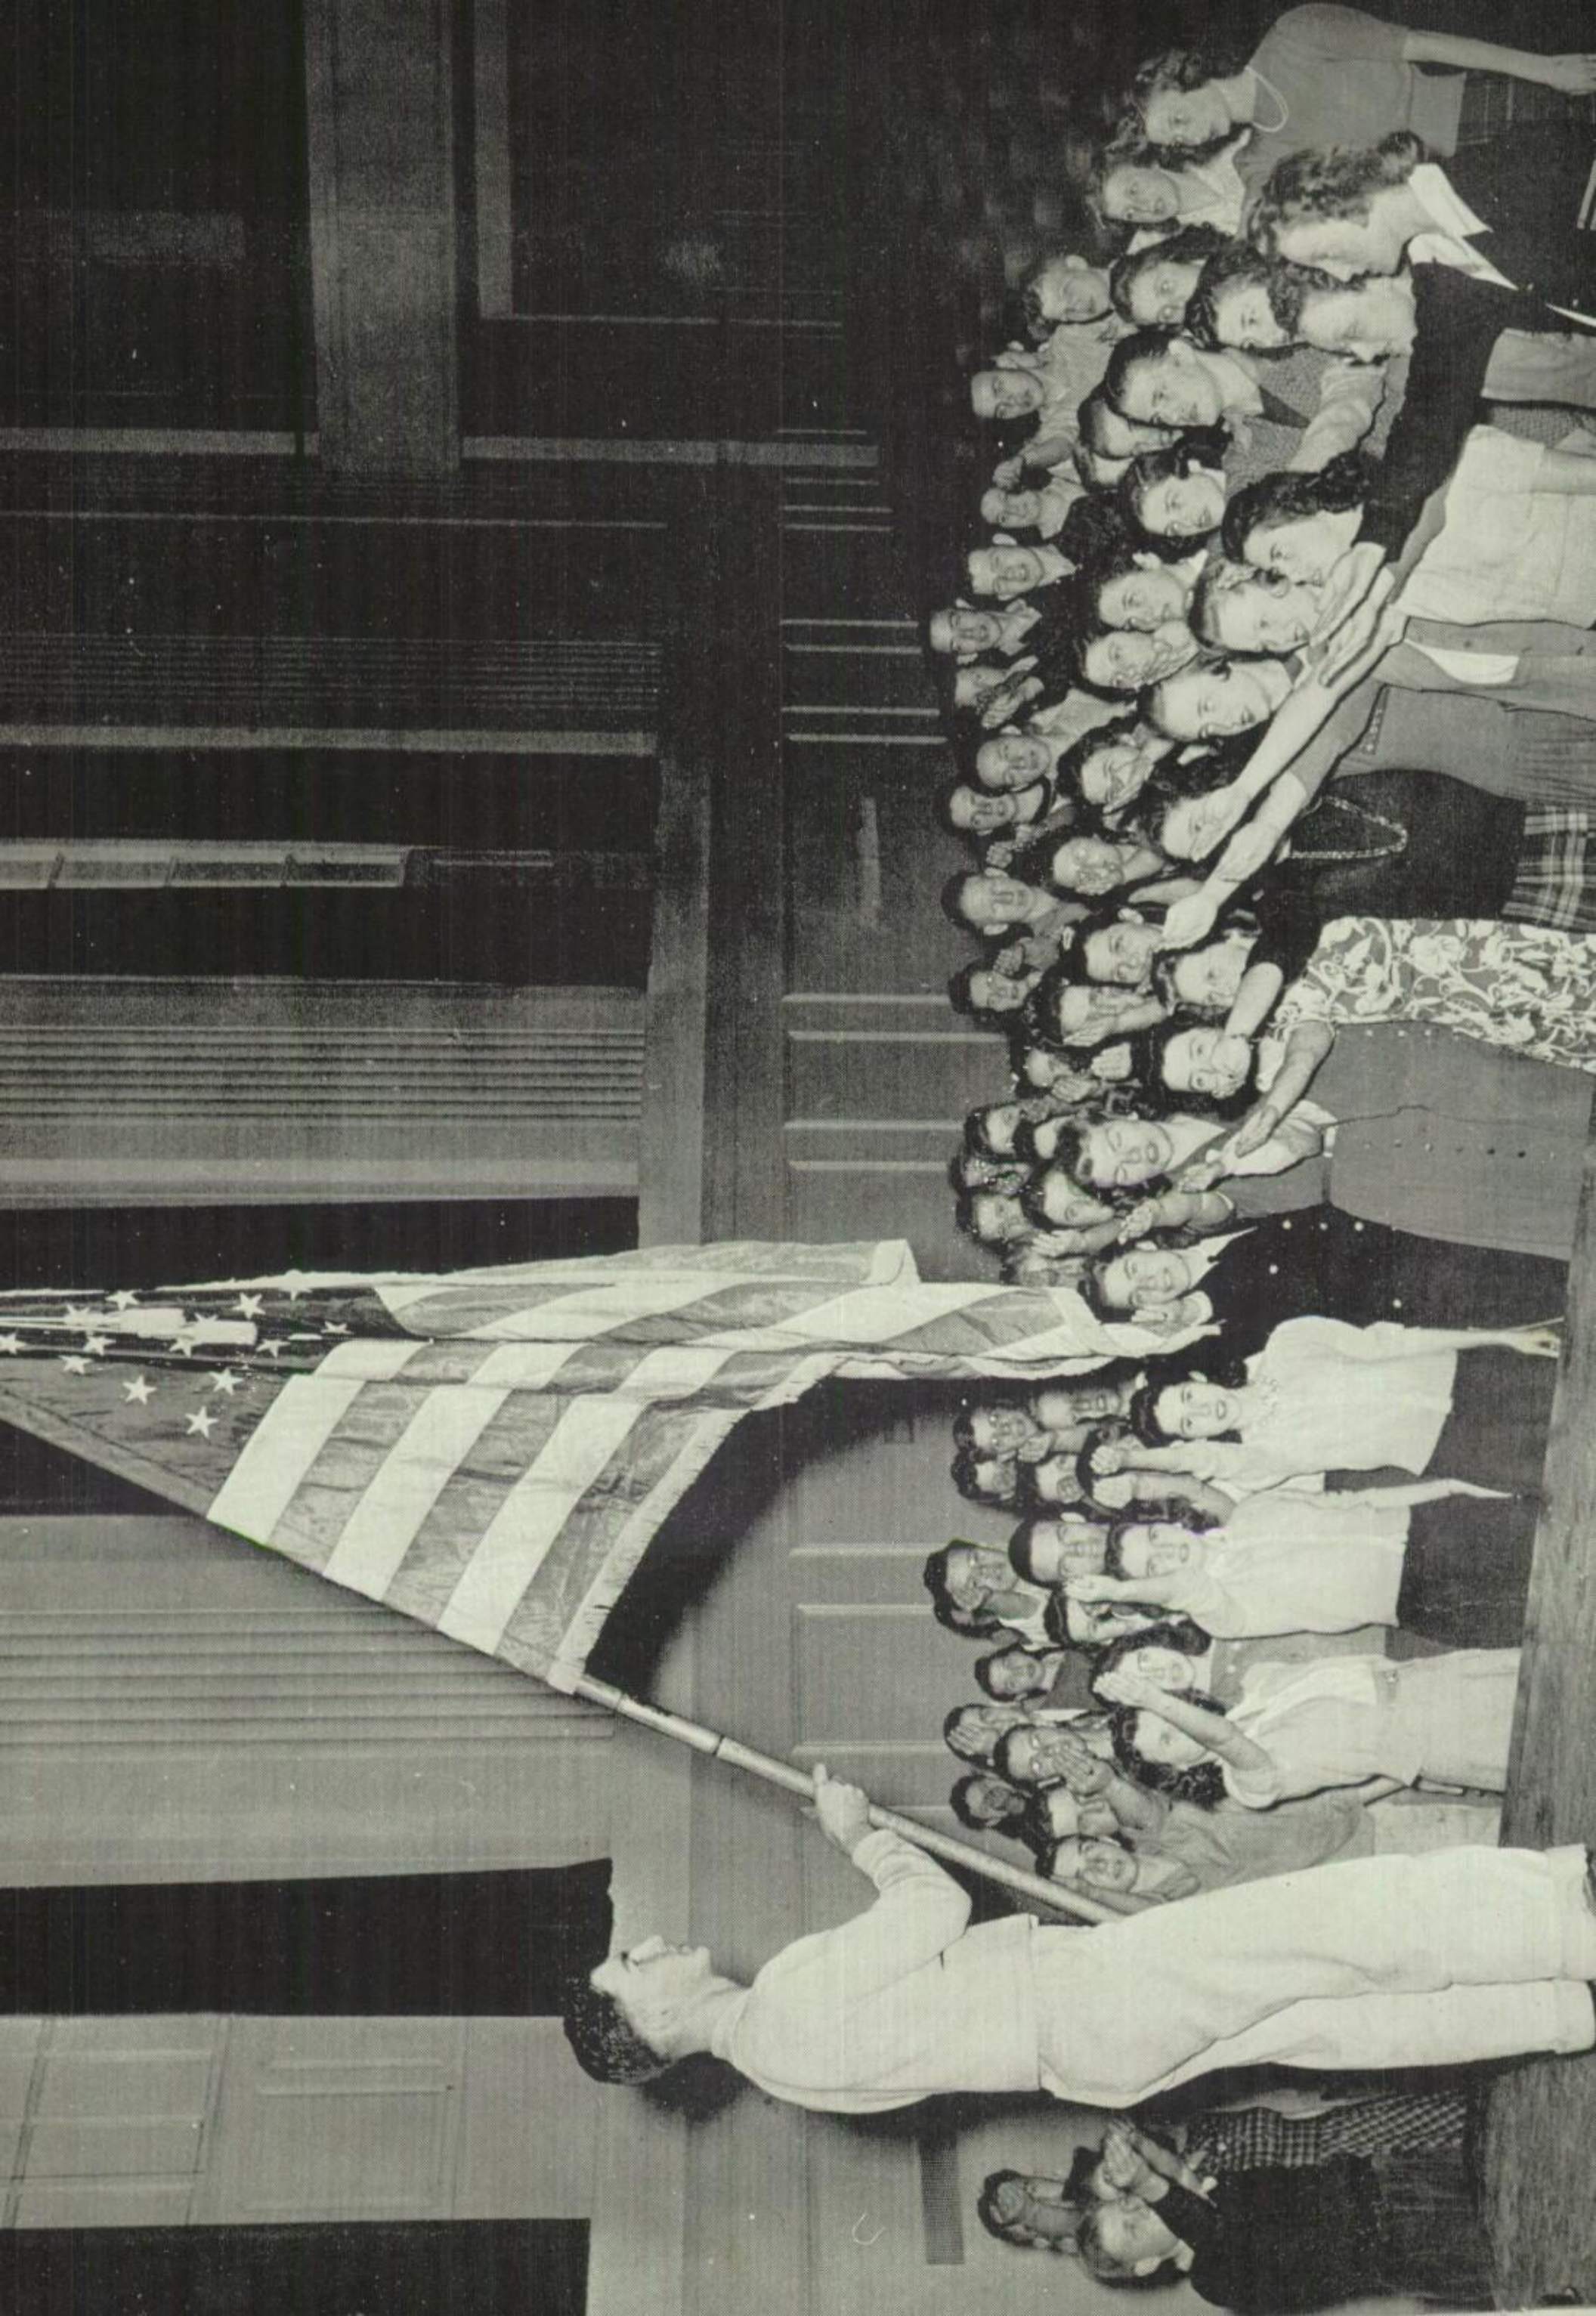

We are the future men and women of the greatest democracy the world has ever known. Soon we leave Corvallis High, the first to graduate since this great war began.

Let us prove we are worthy of the principles of liberty, equality, and justice we have learned here.

Let us assert the right of those who come after us to learn those same principles in a high school in a free country.

DEDICATED TO LOYALTY

May the 1942 Chintimini stand as a monument to that spirit which has made this one of the best years in the history of Corvallis High School.

In the Groove

FULL SPEED AHEAD . . . doors of CHS were opened wide to students on first day of school. Those first days were filled with "Hi Ya Pal, haven't seen you all summer" . . . dazed expressions in choosing classes . . . buying student body tickets and accumulating, acquiring, and feeling that "old school spirit" again.

INS AND OUTS of those registration days saw us sometimes in and sometimes out of the "inner sanctum" of Principal Moore's office. It was here that twisted schedules and confused minds were straightened out (for a while anyway). A bit of all right was the way Mary Lou White kept tab on office work and acted as general "helper outer" to everyone throughout the year.

TO START A WIDE-AWAKE and active social year and make welcome the sophomores was the special purpose of the sophomore reception. Receiving line, orchestra, and a zippy theme of "I Take to You" brought about a friendly shaking of hands between senior class president Jim Clarke and sophomore president Howard Coe.

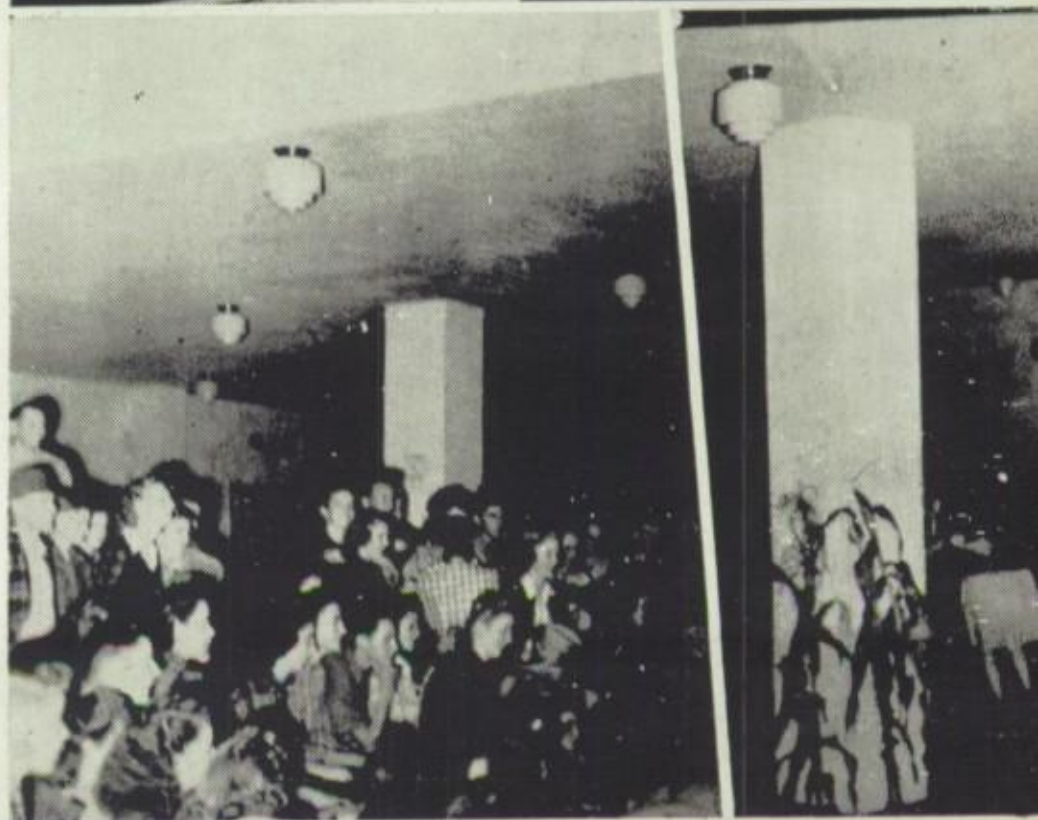

GETTING INTO THE GROOVE at school, we found ourselves in study hall . . . sitting at our desks packed full of power and purpose (it says here) — and cramming for a test. This is the scene where we conserved paper and pencils, avoided eye strain . . . but according to Mrs. Jacobs were mighty extravagant with our tongues!

All for Fun

FOOTBALL FUN . . . the stands were always packed this season . . . this is just one of those games where it was the 3rd quarter, the last down, everybody holding his breath, Eugene on the drive and the score 7-0. Doesn't take guesswork from here on kiddies . . . all of you got your breath back and the yell leaders let out with one of those ear-splitting, lusty yells that left us squeaking for days.

GAME OVER—DANCE BEGINS . . . and so it was after most of the football games . . . everyone made tracks to the cafeteria where hep-cats gathered as sweet swing and boogie woogie filled the air. In this place of frolic and fun sophomores and juniors held class parties. This is an illustration of the sophomore party where "Old McDonald's Farm" was transplanted . . . could be the pigs and even some wolves got in?

TIME-OUT — BLACK-OUT . . . who doesn't remember this? During the rally dance, shin-cracking was stopped when black-out warning came shrieking through the air . . . lights out, cars stopped . . . and your imagination will tell you what this black-out picture might have been—could have been—and was!

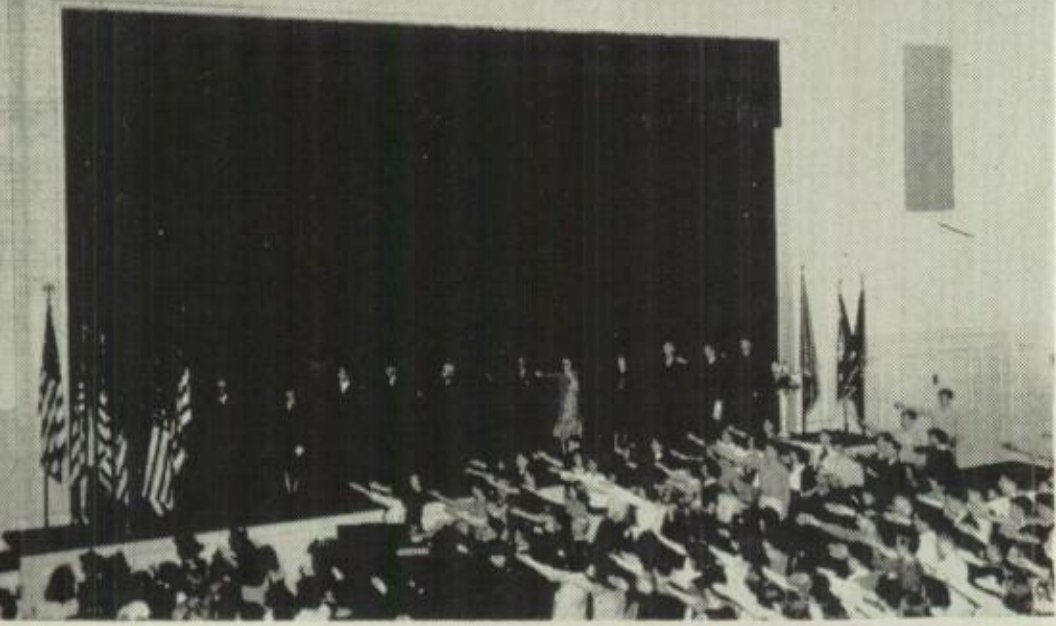

MORE FUN . . . bowlegged tires, an engine that sounds like a meat grinder, a horn that hates to hear itself, and a dream in technicolor was Porter's red "engine." Many more like it whisked kids to basketball and football games, whipped them to rallies and to coke hang-outs . . . going to the tourney in Salem, they all formed a string that would have made a conga-line look sick . . . parking places around school were occupied with things that would have filled a museum with rare antiques.

Everybody Was There .

COMES THE WAR . . . and for all of us it's the stars and stripes forever! . . . the CHS assembly salutes the American flag . . . symbol which all the dictators are trying to erase . . . everyone saved pennies, sacrificed one or two cokes, forgot about a show, and saved toothpaste tubes in order to buy stamps and bonds and to add a fender to one of Uncle Sam's jeeps!

RALLIES A-POPPING! From school to city streets, CHSers gathered in clans to have rallies packed full of pep, zip, and ringing yells that are still getting returning echoes . . . this year games were broadcast from Spartan Field over KWIL, and Spartan yells and songs sailed over the air waves.

BIG NIGHT of the year . . . when the football field was "glamourized" with bright lights. A sawdust turf (which football fellows put on themselves) and a new name made a record for CHS. Mr. Moore, principal, dedicated "Spartan Field." Mothers and dads, townspeople, and businessmen were all there—because they had made it possible.

AFTER ALL-OUT to football games and rallies, the basketball team came up on top with a super-duper record that drew more interest as the basketball season dribbled on. Comes to mind here that everyone was at the basketball surprise tournament in Salem, and everyone came to the basketball banquet in the cafeteria when special gifts, congratulating speeches, and jokes on Coach Ramsey highlighted the evening.

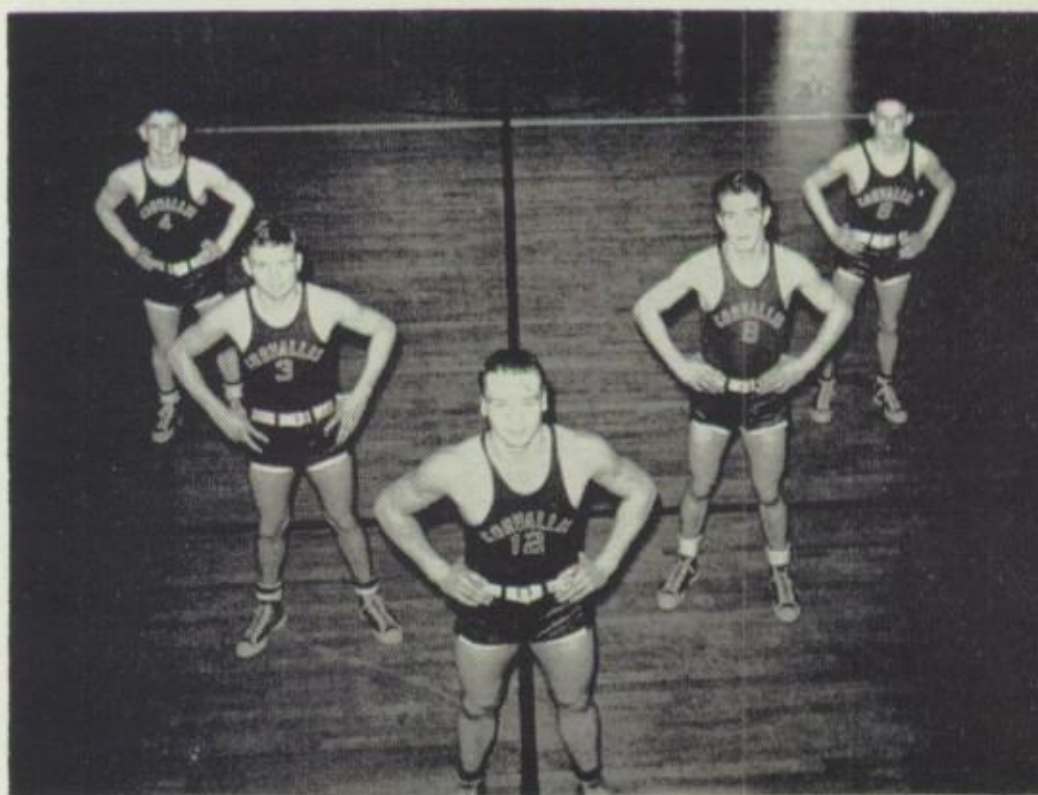

V for Victory

WITH LIGHTNING FURY . . . booster tickets were sold all over . . . in order to brighten Spartan Field. Bruce Nichols and Bob Burtner acted as head-lightmen, getting the lights and organizing the Booster Ticket Drive. With such a powerful current of sales, all previous records were topped. Funds aided to buy parkas for the football players, flashy basketball suits to match the record, and smooth baseball togs.

WHAT A LINE-UP and what a line (everyone thought!) when Coach Frank Ramsey made the courageous and challenging statement: "This year's football team will not be defeated or scored upon on Spartan Field." Final lowdown . . . no scores . . . no defeats. Big men and big names of football season were Chuck Apple, honorary captain, most valuable player and best defensive player . . . Phil Schramm, best blocker . . . Bob Knoll, leading scorer and best offensive player . . . Bob Reiman, tied for best defensive player and chosen best sportsman . . . Don Ziegler, most improved player.

V FOR VICTORY . . . and the wonder team came through with startling victories in the all-state basketball tournament. Orphaned and without a regular basketball coach, our varsity stayed healthy and determined . . . then all-around Coach Ramsey took them over and "fathered" them through to the end . . . with students singing the victory song "On Corvallis never give in . . . On Corvallis fight on to win . . . Fight on to victory . . . Fight, fight, fight!

CORVALLIS HIGH'S BASKETBALL TEAM came into the home stretch by breaking through the hoop with enough baskets to capture the 2nd place trophy for the state. At right, "all state" player, Jason Widmer presents the trophy to Katie McMillan, S. B. secretary . . . Mr. Moore (better known to the students as the King in "The Fatal Quest") looks on.

Student Council

Completing a full year as governing body, the student council proved a unicameral form of government works for Corvallis High.

Under the leadership of student body officers Jason Widmer, David Allison, Kathleen McMillan and Gladys Horning, a representative from each home room attended meetings each week, and reported the business to their home rooms.

The annual student body reception, which the council sponsored on the first day of school, marked the beginning of activities. The all-school circus in the spring served to raise funds for the lights on Spartan Field.

In addition to other duties, the council revised both the constitution and by-laws during the course of the year.

Mr. V. A. Moore served as adviser to the council, with Mr. Jack Irvin as assistant. Miss Helen Myers acted as student body auditor.

Senior Class History

As young and innocent sophomores, we were welcomed to our new place of education by upperclassmen, who, with proper regard to since-forgotten traditions, called upon us for such favors as wearing bow ties, scrubbing the steps, and wearing huge hair bows. To show us they were our friends, however, the upperclassmen sponsored a sophomore reception dance. Later, having chosen Bob Adams, Bob Reiman, Jerry Smith, and Carol Hart as officers, we gave a party for ourselves. Having our share of original ideas, we built the first C.H.S. bonfire, which went up in a blaze of glory before one of the football games.

As the moneymakers of the school, the juniors, we did ourselves proud, selling hot dogs and candy bars galore. All the games were literally flooded with soda pop. Our play for the year was an amusing comedy, "Footloose."

Class officers were Bob Reiman, Walter Hardy, Juanita Jones and Maxine Leonard. Our final achievement of the year was the junior-senior entertainment. It was an ocean-cruise sport dance with decorations which were nautical but nice.

In this, our final year of glory, we chose James Clarke, Mary Lewis, Fern Morse, and Nancy Teutsch to lead us. Our play, "June Mad," was an outstanding success, establishing something of a record. As a fitting reward for buying the greatest percentage of student body tickets, we were shown a free movie at the Majestic Theater, which was enjoyed by all. Our class was ably advised by Miss Vera Horner and Mr. Russell Adams. This year, our tangible gift to posterity consisted of an electric time clock-scoreboard in the gym. We donated the rest of our funds to help pay for the football lights.

Senior Prophecy

SUSAN KAMMERER has established a world's record by typing continuously for four hours without visible error. Investigation shows that no ribbon was used in the machine.

FORREST BOGARD is now to be seen in the circus sideshow. It is claimed that he is the largest midget in the world.

Singing "Blues in the Night," NELL MOOREHEAD took first prize on the Major Bowes amateur hour the other night.

BOB REIMAN is a great success in the literary world. His latest best-seller is the smallest book in the world—"Who's Who in Germany."

Running his 1925 Buick on the rims, BOB PORTER easily won the auto racing championship of the United States last week.

A worthy successor to Walter Winchell, BETTY JO CLINTON now puts out a gossip column in the American Observer.

After years of research, BRUCE NICHOLS, famous sociologist, has discovered the two leading causes of divorce—men and women.

Flash!!! DON CHIPMAN just defeated CHUCK APPLE and is now heavyweight wrestling champion of the world.

With his Law of Angular Disconfloberations, PAUL CHAMBERS has disproved Einstein's Theory. The more conservative scientists, under the leadership of ALCON GALLAGHER, protest, claiming this new law makes the law of gravity unconstitutional.

JAMES CLARKE, dashing young senator from Oregon, is quite the man about town in Washington these days.

BUD COX has developed a new process for printing $5 bills. He is very busy doing government work just now, but you can see him on visitor's day.

LORENZ HARDENBURGER is now "Johnny" on the Phillip Morris program. TOM NELSON finds supreme happiness as dictator of an uninhabited South Sea island.

JANE KEENEY has become a rugged individualist. She claims that the only time two heads are better than one is when you are matching nichols.

MARGIE HEATH has found her career in the field of radio. Every night before Fred Waring plays, she raises the lid on the studio piano.

ROGER MILLS is now boss of the local Teamsters' Union. His boys recently went on strike because their employers would not permit them to wave their cap pistols, and yell "Hi-yo Silver."

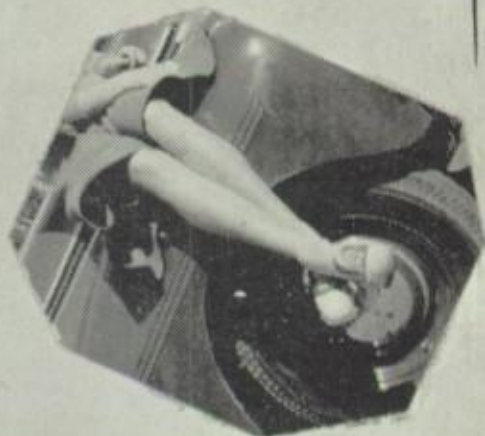

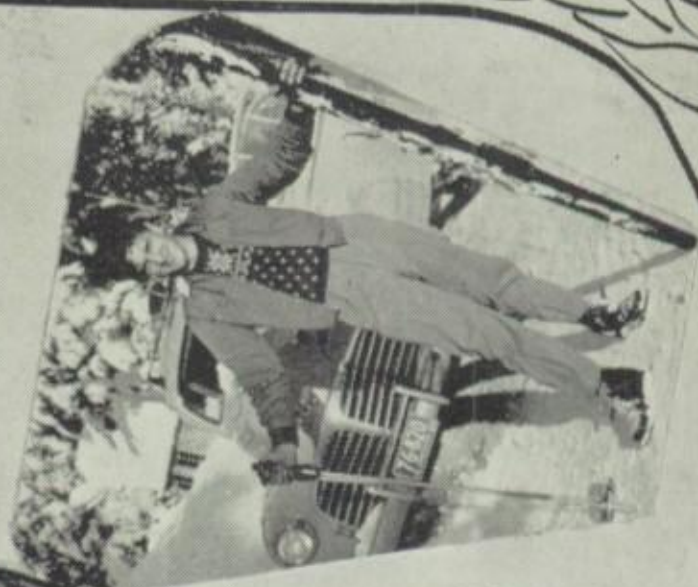

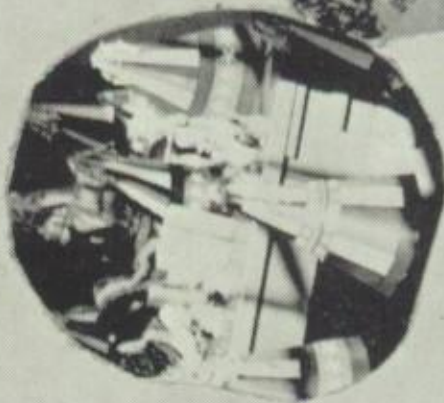

Having saved old magazines for several years, JOHN FORTNER is now a thriving dentist.

DAVID McCOSKRIE has given up his navy career and settled down. He is proprietor of the rowboat rental at Colorado Lake.

DUANE APPLEMAN is being given a funeral with full military honors. Until recently he was with the Air Corps, testing the parachutes they didn't think would open.

JOYCE THOMAS, secretary for a rich manufacturer, is said to be in the lap of luxury.

Time Waits for No Senior Girl . .

Looking back at ourselves as senior girls there are certain things that do come to mind

There was the morning that after inhaling breakfast we brushed our teeth with Dad's shaving cream and the morning we skidded down the hall, worked for five minutes on our locker combination to find that ours was the next one over! Then remember the day we were first introduced to the principal and trying to make the proper impression when they said "Miss Mazie Daze, this is Mr. Moore, our new principal" and we said, "How do you do, Miss Daze." There was that, and the time after gulping our lunch down we hic-coughed all during 4th period. Remember the day we got back our senior themes and notes one note which found its way in would have been a censor's delight! naturally a composition on the choicest gossip there was the time we stayed up all night and into the next morning (even to conversing with the chickens) cramming for a Social Econ. test — the one that was put off for three weeks Think back to that day in assembly when everyone was yelling and you got started late—then when everyone else was finished, you were still soloing! Will we ever forget the class when we decided to develop our artistic ability, with teacher as subject—and she was standing right behind us!

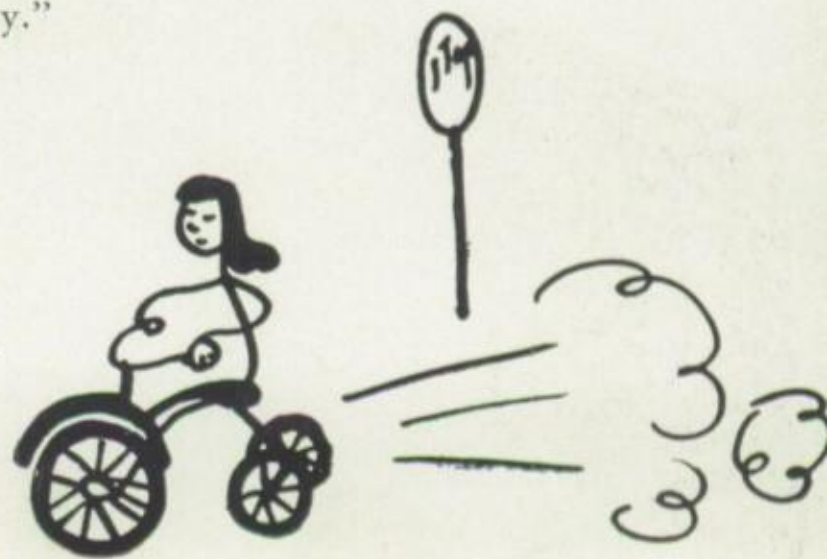

It was all these little things and more—but isn't it fun to remember?

. . . . Nor Senior Boy

All is quiet. The ringing of an alarm clock shatters the stillness. Groans drown out the ringing of the alarm. Soon four dull thuds are heard. Enter the hero, his hair tousled, his face with a dazed expression, and one shoe on the wrong foot. With all the grace of an elephant he sits down to his Shredded Wheat and cocoa, filling his mouth by the bail and shovelful respectively. With a swish he leaves the table and begins a frantic search for his books. This ends when he finds his books in the wastebasket, where he threw them the night before after disagreeing with Shakespeare. Like an avalanche, he, his books and his bicycle go hurtling off the front porch and down the steps to earth, and dashes along his way. Peddling swiftly down Thirteenth street, he comes to Van Buren. He spies a police car and decides to observe traffic regulations. Feverishly pumping on the brake, he makes a belated stop in the middle of the street. Like the shot out of a cannon, he again resumes his journey. Unknown to him, he forgot to zip his notebook. The first three pages of his senior theme, "Apple Polishing the Scientific Way," fall out. He makes a desperate grab and rescues them in mid-air. His eraser is next in line. He has to stop to retrieve it, what with priorities and all. He continues his weary way on to Taylor street where he misses the Red Bus by inches. Fortunately nothing happens for the next three blocks, and he reaches Corvallis High School intact. There isn't time now to put it away, so he leaves his bike on the sidewalk and hurries up the southwest steps. He reaches the top, gives the door a tug; nothing happens. He tugs again. Still nothing happens. He gives the door a couple of kicks. Then, like a bolt from the blue it hits him, and slowly he mutters, "Oh, ?*!?. This is Saturday."

Coming up from lowly ranking sophomores, the "Jivin' Juniors" early provided strong competition for seniors in the student body ticket race. After a wild week, the thermometer showed the juniors lost by only a fraction of a percent.

Under the leadership of Rae Ardis DeMoss, the Junior Sales Committee distinguished themselves, selling more luscious candy bars and pop than any one class before them. The junior party, given in the fall with the help of Mrs. McGlasson and Miss Myers, advisers, featured a "Snowed In" theme.

Famed in sports were the "muscle men" of the class, who won Blue "C" letters in football, basketball, and baseball. The fall and spring initiations found several juniors contributing to old members' amusement. Juniors interested in dramatics participated in the Thalian play and the junior class play, "Ever Since Eve." Those giving outstanding performances were admitted to Thalian.

Class officers Earle Greig, Pat Metcalf, Georgene Frink, and Pauline Moore met with representatives from junior home rooms, forming the junior council. At the end of the year this body declined to give the seniors a party, partly because of the early closing of school, partly because they did not think the seniors deserved one.

As student body president Jason Widmer speaks through C.H.S.'s new microphone, the student body knows the sophomore class has been at work again. By sponsoring two basketball games and one show, these enthusiastic newcomers raised enough money to purchase the much-needed mike.

Led by officers Howard Coe, president; Marian Holroyd, vice-president; Martha Lee, secretary; John Shupe, treasurer; and Bill McBee, sergeant-at-arms, the sophomores started things off with a hayseed party.

Four boys became Hi-Y neophytes and seven girls survived a Pep initiation. Jeanne McIntosh served as secretary of the Girls' League. Five sophomores who kept up both grades and activities earned Torch membership.

Much of the credit for the success of the sophomore class goes to their advisers, Mrs. Evelyn Jacobs and Miss Dorothy Bergstrom.

Looking back on their good start, the sophomores believe they, as seniors, will be the most progressive class in the history of the school. But that's what they all say.

STUDENTS anxious to hear the presses roll must have a year of journalism to catch up on latest trends.

MEMBERS first edition of the H-O-S came out on the first day of school with its face lifted streamlining was the keynote, with new headlines and mast-heads later in the year, the staff sponsored a "Stamp out the Japs" campaign promoting patriotism and furnishing suggestions to help CHSers aid national defense a thrill to editors was the Columbia Press Association Award, highest ever received by the H-O-S.

STAFF HEADS Betty Jo Clinton, editor Roger Hill, business manager Sally Jackman, managing editor Bob Knoll, sports editor.

ADVISER Miss Ethel Ranney.

The 1942 Chintimini staff got off to the best start in years, ending a campaign for senior pictures before Christmas vacation. Due to rising costs of production, signing of contracts was delayed until more funds could be secured. Later, bad weather and mumps helped to put production behind schedule, true to tradition.

Thanks to Mr. Richard Adams, who took the indoor feature pictures, to Mr. Max McGlasson, adviser, and to the splendid cooperation of the student body, the Chintimini, still true to tradition, goes to press.

To open a speech with "Ladies and Gentlemen" is "small town stuff" to polished C.H.S. orators. An enlarged group, headed by Mr. Brooks, studied debate, oratory, poetry reading, and extemporaneous speaking.

At the Linfield Invitational Tournament, Corvallis debaters argued the question, "Resolved, that the State of Oregon should have a general sales tax." Also entered in this tournament were entries in poetry reading and extemporaneous speaking. Debate squad members later attended the District Tournament at Linfield.

After winning a contest here at school, Bob Adams was awarded first place in the district American Legion Oratorical Contest. At Reed College, Bob won second place state honors.

Thalian Society

Gurgle, gurgle, glop, oops, ugh, umm yummm, Oh my tummy!

Don't be alarmed—it's just a Thalian neophyte eating the traditional oyster and worms (guaranteed fresh and juicy). Old Thalian members, trying to out-do each other, make their initiates feel mighty uncomfortable the first day, with singing, dancing, or impromptu performances on the list, in addition to a brilliant "T" painted on the forehead.

An honorary society for outstanding work in school dramatic productions, Thalian has one of the most difficult and colorful initiations in C.H.S. With Phil Schramm as president, the club's project this year was making a file of selective plays read by the members.

Each year Thalian sponsors a play, giving each student a chance to participate. "The Night of January 16th" was this year's production.

"The Night of January 16th"

SUPERIOR COURT NUMBER ELEVEN OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK the Honorable Judge William Heath presiding THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK VERSUS KAREN ANDRE Bjorn Faulkner did not kill himself. He was murdered, and the State contends he was murdered by Karen Andre — that on the night of January 16th she took her revenge Karen Andre's white gown shimmering in the moonlight — a man in evening clothes — Faulkner leaning against the parapet. She pushes him with all her strength — he goes down into space I did push a man off the penthouse. But it was not Bjorn Faulkner When she was arrested for Faulkner's murder, he was still alive I am capable of murder — for Bjorn Faulkner's sake ladies and gentlemen of the jury, you are to determine whether the defendent is guilty or not guilty of the murder of Bjorn Faulkner, and her fate rests in your hands The jury finds the prisoner NOT GUILTY of the murder of Bjorn Faulkner.

A new name in C.H.S. this year, Grandioso quickly became an important activity. Organized to provide a higher standard of music in school, their initiates royally entertained lunchers in the cafeteria with their own compositions. Finding these solos did little to improve the music tastes of the students, Grandioso sponsored two excellent programs, "Daniel Boone" in the fall and "Marco Polo" in the spring.

Exclusively a "lassies" organization, the Girls' League, this year made a sparkling and worth while record.

A year filled to the brim with new ideas, thoughtful deeds, and serious reflections by all girls.

Social Whirl found Co-ed balls in the afternoons the lovely tea at Christmas time for senior girls and their mothers the Senior Coffee, where all the older girls reminisced and finally, in cooperation with the lads of CHS, the "Drafting Dad" entertainment. The Faculty Tea ended activities.

Kindly deeds were carried out in brightening the hearts of "shut-ins" when girls wrote letters, made visits, and sent flowers.

Serious reflections came direct to girls from speakers who were tops. In the printed form, material and information was given through the "Blushes Blackout" booklet and Girls' League handbook.

Special star goes to Mrs. Rounds, dean of girls, who inspired and gave her time to each of us.

Beginning the season on a new lighted field, Coach Frank Ramsey instilled enough fight and football in the C.H.S. squad to gain a tie for first place in the no-name league.

Following a pledge made at the first of the season the team established an outstanding defensive record by being unbeaten, untied, and unscored-upon on Spartan Field.

Black mark of the season was the game at Albany on Armistice Day, when the Bulldogs triumphed with a score of 26-6.

Enthusiasm of students helped to make the season a success, said football boys.

Surprising many outsiders was the 19-11 win over highly-favored Salem. Climbing to the top, Corvallis played Astoria, defending champions, in the championship game. In the second half of this game, Astoria increased their one-point lead and the final score showed Astoria 34, Corvallis 22. Jason Widmer was selected on the all-state basketball team at this tournament.

Most of the season the team was under the direction of Frank Ramsey, who proved coaching basketball was another of his accomplishments.
